The perfect choice for a great summer read!

'Making News should come with a warning that it shouldn't be read on public transport... unless you are happy for people to stare at you like a crazy person while you snort with laughter. I could not have loved it more. Without doubt my favourite Australian novel of the year.' - Wil Anderson

'As a novel, it hangs coherently and builds with purpose – avoiding the traps sometimes encountered when funny people try the serious business of writing a proper book...Wilson is a novelist who just happens to be hilarious.' - The Age

'Wilson has been compared to Ben Elton but to take such a comparison is to do him a disservice...Really he is closer to Nick Hornby...Making News is an easy read, full of laughs and hard to put down.' - The Sydney Morning Herald

'It's difficult to imagine who wouldn't enjoy this snappily written yarn. It's a truly non-guilty pleasure.' - The West Australian

'Making News is funny and cynical. Comparisons with Ben Elton and Carl Hiaasen spring to mind.' - South Coast Register

'A celebrity story is great, and the more sensational the better. The story behind the front pages is a bit dark, but lots of fun.' - Woman's Day
